

Technological Partnership Announcement:

Avanquest and Medialive combine their world-class expertise to provide a groundbreaking tool for building your own legal music and video library for your mobile phone, with content download from the WEB or WAP

Barcelona, 13th February 2006 – Medialive, a leading provider of innovative multimedia content protection solutions and Avanquest, a leading developer and publisher of business and consumer software for the global mobile market, combine their complementary software solutions focusing operators triggering value-added rich media services.

Avanquest and Medialive present a unique solution for the secure transfer of music and video libraries with mobile and PC domain management. Avanquest's solutions are now DRM-enabled for a one-stop, user-friendly secure transfer of any music and video file with its digital rights, bringing content single delivery for mobile and PCs. A new product range combining Medialive's DRM capabilities with Avanquest's solutions will facilitate the delivery and management of multimedia content from a PC to the subscriber's mobile phone and vice versa while respecting protected content and rights holders.

Operators and subscribers take advantage of the key benefits offered by this innovative solution including:

- Media and digital rights secure transfer from Mobile to PC and from PC to Mobile
- Single delivery for content - centralized management for mobile/online rights and usages
- Easy to manage audio and video content on mobile phones
- Creating an iPod-like user experience on top of cellular connectivity
- Increase in number of transactions on mobile and web portals creating revenue opportunity for the operators
- PC and mobile DRM solution is compatible with all OMA 2.0 use cases.

“By integrating the Medialive's DRM to ensure end-to-end security content delivery, Avanquest provides a unique solution and continues to strengthen its leadership position within the mobile marketplace.” said David Wright, President of Avanquest Software's OEM Division.

Didier Lesteven, CEO of Medialive, comments: “Avanquest makes it easy to build a music and video library for the mobile handset while Medialive is instrumental in providing the necessary control of the usages with its DRM, opening wide catalogues for legal transactions. The users order once and consume the content on-the-go, on their cellular.”
